PLUMBERS' BALL TO BE INAUGURATED

Science Undergraduates "At Home"

JANUARY 23rd

Fair Sex will Invade Engineering Building for First Time

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon, the Science Undergraduate executive representatives from each class and the Dept. of Architecture, decided to hold a Science "At Home."

The big day will be Friday January 23rd. And of course the place—the Macdonald Engineering Building. In addition to dancing which will naturally hold the foremost place on the program, there will be many and varied attractions.

The whole building will be thrown open for inspection, including the mysterious labs, far below the surface of the campus.

The huge first year drafting room the Workman Building will be used exclusively for dancing.

The building architects will take complete charge of the decoration scheme, and if their work at the Alma Mater Dance last year can be taken as a criterion of their ability, enough has been said.

All attendance records for college functions promise to be eclipsed by the "Plumbers' Ball" due to the fact that it will be informal will be popularly priced, and will follow immediately on the heels of the mid-term exams.

Incidentally this will be the first occasion on which the fair sex have had the opportunity of invading the boiler-makers' lair.

The committee will announce further details in the columns of the "Daily."

DISCUSSION OF COLLEGE PROBLEMS

Dr. Leacock to Address Commercial Society

"Dr. Stephen Leacock, the Canadian humorist, seems to be a man it would be anybody's wish to know," says the N. Y. Chronicle.

It is unfortunate that some of our staff, yet McGill students do not know his even as a member of the staff.

To-night at 8:15 o'clock in the Union, Prof. Leacock will address the Commercial Society. When it was rumored among some of the members of the undergraduate body that the society was to hear Prof. Leacock, keen expressions of delight followed.

The executive deems itself particularly fortunate in being able to command some of the valuable time of this engaging professor. The subject chosen is one that will interest everyone. "My College Days and Yours," will be a keen and frank discussion of the college problems of to-day. The collegiate body of the future will be able to get a glimpse of the college life of the past. The

FORTY-EIGHT HOURS LEFT TO DECIDE

Campaign for Annual Subscriptions Closes Wednesday

FREE PICTURE

Full Instructions Regarding Competition Given To Class Presidents

Only forty-eight hours now remain before the subscription lists for the McGill 1924 close. Only those who sign the form will be assured of a copy of volume XXVIII of the Annual. If 1300 names appear on the subscription list, the Annual board will pay the Government tax on the book, otherwise this sum will be paid by the students as in past years. This year's board has already definitely reduced the price of the book by 25 cents, but cannot put the second reduction into effect unless the circulation of the book warrants.

In connection with the competition for the insertion of a free picture in the Annual, the board has issued the following instructions to class presidents. "Whatever possible the lists are to be turned in to the Union Party on Wednesday evening, after 5:00 o'clock. If this is impossible, they must be turned in before 12:00 o'clock noon on Thursday, in order that the results of the competition may be announced in Friday's issue of the Daily. At the top of each list, the name of the class should be legibly written. When more than one sheet is handed in, each should contain this information."

On Wednesday afternoon, the board meets for the last time before the Christmas vacation. At this meeting the contract for printing the book will be awarded, and during the holidays, much of the copy will be set up in order that the book may appear on the campus as an early date.

With articles by Dr. A. S. Lamb and Coach Frank Shaughnessy now definitely assured the Athletic section important, will probably be the best of the book, always one of the best yet. In addition to these special articles, there will be many action pictures of the stars and also several close-ups of track, gridiron and ice favourites. The other accounts will be written up in an interesting manner. The old stereotyped accounts of athletics will disappear.

Advertising for the book is coming in at a fairly good rate, about one-fifth of the quota being already secured. This department of the work is under the charge of J. G. Brierley, Arts '26, who will be pleased to get in touch with anyone who has any connection with firms who might be likely to advertise in the Annual.

"Once again we wish to emphasize that only a sufficient number of books will be printed to satisfy the demands of those who have signed the subscription forms," declared a member of the board yesterday. "Those who do not sign within the next forty-eight hours will be unable to secure a copy of the book. For the benefit of any who find themselves unable to get in touch with a member of their class executive, we have placed a list with the porter in the Union. We hope to see fully signed names on the lists in order that we may reduce the price of the book once again." These statements were made by another member of the board.

Parliament Meets Wednesday In Union, Not Thursday—Debaters To Be Chosen

What is one of the most famous cabinets in McGill politics is announced. From one end of the Dominion to the other, Canadian press is eagerly waiting thousands, radio and wireless have spread the personnel of a body that is the very essence of activity. Telegrams are coming from every section of the continent to congratulate the prime minister on what has been one of the greatest strokes of political sagacity in the last 50 years. The cabinet is to be one of the most comprehensive of its kind and, the members, representing as they do every corner of the Dominion, will work it is stated for the welfare of every section of Canada and will remain, unlike the previous cabinets, one of the master strokes of clear and sane Rationalism.

Stumping its feet, shouting hoarse, despite the fact that the mercury stood below the zero mark, an enormous crowd which blocked the traffic on Sherbrooke street for upwards of an hour and a half gathered last night at seven o'clock to hear the cabinet appointments. The night was cold and the crowd was dense, but the excitement was too great for the weather.

REFORMERS AROUSE MUCH ENTHUSIASM

Delegation Calls on Reform Party

OUT TO WIN

Electors From Every Quarter Acclaim Reform Party

A monster delegation comprising many men renowned in political life and headed by His Worship the Mayor Theophile de Cheneval, the leader of the new famous Reform Party, arrived in the city last night to assure him that the entire country was behind him in his efforts for better government and to ask him that he continue unceasing in his efforts to subvert the government at the next session of Parliament.

Spector received the delegation cordially "I feel the importance of the trust confided in me by the Electorate. The people can be trusted. Since it is their wish that the Reform Party assure the government of our fair nation, it shall be done. I pledge myself to carry into effect the sterling principles of the Reform Party."

Spector was enthusiastically acclaimed. The delegation presented him with a loving cup in appreciation of his endeavours.

The Campaign of the Reform Party goes on apace. Every province is responding to Reform ovations in a most encouraging manner.

Eugene Forsey speaking in Brandon, took the government to task for their procrastination. "They are on the eve of the session and are uncertain as to their policies unshackled as to true political undecided as to their cabinet and thoroughly at loss to find support anywhere in the country."

"We must develop our sea-ports," said H.C. Goldenberg last night addressing a huge meeting at St. John's N.B. "The government has sacrificed national welfare too long for a seemingly small saving. Portland flourishes which St. John's and Halifax suffer."

Hugh O'Donnell addressed the electors at an open air meeting at Ste. Anne de la Pocatiere Junction. The electorate turned out clad in tuques, sashes, mittens, fur-coats and every other vestment they could procure to withstand the assault of the weather man. The ardour of the meeting was unabated, however. O'Donnell was conducted to the station on his departure by the band of the Junction, and as the train pulled away, three rousing cheers and a tiger signified that the electors were solidly behind the Reform Party. Schursberg, Aikman, Morell are continuing their campaign in the West.

The Reform Party will come into great prominence at the next session when Spector, the grand old man from Quebec will introduce an amendment to the Speech from the throne to the effect that the Senate be reformed along such lines as are laid down by the Irish Free State Constitution 1922. The fate of all parliamentary parties will depend on the issue. An unprecedented turnout is expected.

CONSERVATIVES GATHER FOR DISCUSSION

BALDWIN CABLES

Perplexing Press Problem Solved—Antics of "Political Mountebanks"

The leaders of the Conservative party held an informal meeting last night in the general committee rooms in the Mount Royal Hotel which they allowed representatives of the press to attend. The meeting was fairly large and the room was filled with smoke as these gentlemen discussed their plans for the forthcoming session tomorrow evening.

The leader of the party, J. G. Glasco was in the chair and along both sides of the long table sat men whose names are known throughout the Dominion for their political brilliance. T. F. Mitchell, D. Everett, G. Nairn, J. C. Quinlan, E. W. T. Gill, C. Morris and A. Proctor were the more familiar faces there and in addition there were several men who are to make their maiden speeches tomorrow evening.

The meeting discussed the newly formed Reform party and some of the comments passed caused long laughter. Their platform came in for severe criticism and the importation of horses was considered one of the most interesting, yet perplexing public stands taken by any party in the memory of those present. THE VALUE OF ASSOCIATION

The importance of environment upon the adolescent boy was one of many interesting topics touched upon by Mr. John Lewis Paton, rectoring Headmaster of the Manchester Grammar School in a talk given recently at the University. In a more recent address, the same speaker laid great emphasis on the fact that team play was a great factor in the make-up of a man's character.

These two great points, environment and team play, may easily be linked together. The effects of environment make themselves felt from public school days; at high school, association with one's fellows begins to be productive of results. At the university, association is perhaps one of the most important courses offered. The spirit of team play that is productive of so fine results can only be obtained by association with one's fellows, and by an understanding of them. It is for this reason that the man who keeps to himself, who is never seen outside the classroom or the library is unable to pull well with his fellow students. He does not understand the meaning of the term team-play, he never becomes imbued with the spirit of which it is so certain to be productive. On only the rarest of occasions does such a person contribute anything of value to the generation in which he lives. And the fault is entirely his.

In very early youth, possibly even, in his teens, the force of circumstances may have made it impossible for him to enjoy good company, and to exchange thoughts and views with others from whom he might derive benefit. But at college, innumerable opportunities are being offered him to agree or disagree with hundreds of others who are his equals.

If a student of this type neglects to take advantage of the opportunities which association offers him, and he is unable to derive any of the durable benefits of the spirit of team-play that would be the inevitable result, he is himself at fault. He is one of those who are deserving of our pity rather than our scorn.

CONDENSED COMMENT

Considerable added interest will be manifest in the third session of mock parliament due to the fact that a third party has been formed. While interest in the discussions has always been keen, the uncertainty of the outcome, due to the addition of a cross-bench party which holds the balance of power is certain to make Wednesday's meeting more lively. Once again a question of real importance is being discussed, and those who are interested in the welfare of their country will be able to obtain some very studied opinions at this session. In contradiction to previous announcements, we are now able to state definitely that the third session of parliament is being held in the ball room of the Union and on Wednesday night. This will avoid one of those ever-to-be-condemned confusions of dates that would otherwise have arisen.

Playing the first game in the Beaubien Cup series with the University of Montreal last night, the senior team began its season of hockey activities. Many changes have been necessary in the line-up of this year's red and white squad. Veterans who had proved their worth graduated and left positions to be filled by exponents of the popular winter sport who had yet to gain experience in senior ranks. These are probably reasons for an exhibition of hockey last night that was by no means brilliant. Witnesses of the contest maintain that with additional experience and training the McGill team should show a marked improvement in the first of the intercollegiate series which will be played after Christmas.

C.O.T.C. BRAVES BITTER WINDS IN CAMPAIGN

Cordial Hospitality at Shaw-bridge

BATTLE ROYAL

Ranks Reinforced by Enthusiasts From the Boys' Farm

War waged in the country around the village of Shawbridge from Saturday morning until Sunday night. On account of its short duration, it did not get very much attention from the newspapers, but nevertheless, the rigors and hardships which the opposing forces braved, was worthy of more notice than they received. Many an old timer in the ranks remarked that the war was more of a campaign in the Alps with a Sibirian thrown in. However, aside from several ears which had swollen to enormous proportions, after being frozen, the soldiers came through the campaign none the worse for their experience. The fact that there were no casualties is not so extraordinary when one takes into account the fact that both the opposing forces were in reality the McGill Contingent of the C.O.T.C. out for its maneuvers.

The first part of the unit under Captain McGoun arrived in Shaw-bridge early Saturday morning and established the base for the entire company in one of the buildings of the Boys' Farm Institution. As soon as the remainder of Contingent had arrived, commanded by Col. Thompson every one prepared himself for the first battle. It had been ascertained that the enemy had established two strong machine-gun positions, and it was the duty of the main body to wipe them out. The main body was therefore split up into two sections and each was to put a machine-gun out of action. After a few hours hard struggle across the valleys, up the hills and through the woods, the gunners were considered the victors of the encounter.

A truce was then arranged until the next day in order to fortify the inner man and also to get a good night's sleep. Every one did full justice to the food set before him. As soon as that exerting yet pleasurable work had been disposed of, the evening was then free. The dining room in the Boys' Farm abounded not only with delicacies tempting the palate, but also with all kinds of amusements and games from Radio to dominoes; and most of the student soldiers did not find it a difficult task to find entertainment during the evening.

Reveille sounded at 6.30 the next morning, and after breakfast the camp was again split up into two. A battle then took place between a force approaching Shawbridge and another force marching towards Piedmont. The former had established themselves in a very strong position, behind a huge work which rested high up on the side of a mountain. The force marching towards Piedmont had a difficult task in scaling the heights to approach the enemy and in so doing lost many of their men. Their flocks, however, did not escape unscathed but due to were able to gain the advantage.

The third encounter took place after mid-day meal had been disposed of. The scouts had reported that the enemy had posted a machine gun in a farmhouse a short distance away, and they seemed to have control of the country side. In this encounter, they were swelled by the youngsters of the Boys' Farm, and thanks to these reinforcements, they were able to wipe out the enemy's position.

During the entire campaign, the forces had not to contend so much with the enemy's bullets (which were blanks) as with the fierce wind and the cold weather which reigned supreme over the countryside. No one complained, however, of those trifling hardships, since they were more than warmed by the excellent meals as well as the hospitality which they received at the hands of everyone at Shawbridge.

COMMERCE VICTORS IN FRESHMAN GAME

Commerce I triumphed over Arts I in the interclass faculty basketball league last evening by a score of 25-26 at Molsen Hall. The game was strenuously contested throughout especially in the last half when Arts fought hard to overcome the tremendous lead piled up by the business men in the first stages.

Even with Cronpion marked absence from defense Arts were continually compelled to shoot from centre and this undoubtedly was the cause of their low scoring in the beginning.

LACHINE DEFEATS INTERMEDIATE B.

Fast and Interesting Basketball Game

Intermediate B. Basketball team was defeated by St. Paul's of Lachine. The final score stood 32-14. Although the score would indicate otherwise the game was fast and interesting throughout.

Lachine opened the scoring by a neat basket from centre floor. McGill retaliated immediately by scoring on a pretty combination play. This was the only score McGill obtained during the first period whilst Lachine chalked up 28 points.

After the rest interval the McGill men came back strong, and opened the period by scoring twice in rapid succession. From then on the game was keenly fought. McGill increased their score to 14, whilst Lachine were only able to add 4 points to their half time score, making the final score 32-14.

For the winners Wilson and W. H. Parkes played stellar games. For McGill—Statner and Heoney showed up well, the latter particularly showing his ability to handle the ball. Just before the game commenced the McGill men elected Johnson as their captain.

The teams lined up as follows:—

MCGILL	LACHINE

Statner	Wilson
Freedman	Keelingback

Heoney	W. H. Parkes

AN "IF" FOR GIRLS

If you can dress to make yourself attractive
Yet not make puffs and curls your chief delight;
If you can swim, and row, be strong and active,
But of the gentler graces lose not sight;

If you can dance without a craze for dancing,
Play without giving too strong a hold,
Enjoy the love of friends with romancing,
Care for the weak, the friendless and the old.

If you can master English, Spanish, Latin,
And not acquire, as well, a priggish mien;
If you can feel the touch of silk and satin
Without despising calico and Jean;

If you can play a saw and wield a hammer,
Can do a man's work when the need occurs,
Can sing when asked, without excuse or stammer,
Can rise above unfriendly snubs and slurs;

If you can make good bread as well as fudges,
Can sew with skill and have an eye for dust;
If you can be a friend and hold no grudges,
A girl whom all will love because they must.

If sometime you should meet and love another
And make a home with faith and peace enshrined,
And you its soul—a loyal wife and mother,
You'll work out pretty nearly to my mind.

The plan that's been developed through the ages,
And win the best that life can have in store,
You'll be, my girl, a model for the sages,
A woman whom the world will bow before.

—Contributed to the Volante, U. of South Dakota.

Even as you and I.

Even as you and I.

A fool there was and he studied late,
Maybe as you, not I;

Maybe as you and I;

It might have been 99, not I.

A CORRECTION

A report which appeared in yesterday's issue stating that the McGill intermediate B. basketball squad was beaten by the N.A.A.A. was incorrect. The red and white squad were victorious by a score of 36 to 25.

TEMPORARY SCHEDULE OF CLASS HOCKEY OUT

A temporary schedule of practice hours is published below. This schedule will take effect to-day, weather permitting. After the holidays a more complete one will be published together with a schedule of the class league games which will start immediately after college re-opens. The various classes entering teams, have been divided into groups of six teams each. The winners of the four groups will play off for the championship.

Players will supply their own equipment in practices, with the exception of goal-pads which may be obtained from the rink attendant. All men taking part in practices and games have been physically examined this season and are in possession of either "A" or "B" category cards. Those players desiring physical attendance should see that their names, initial and year are placed on the proper sheet which will be supplied by the rink attendant. These sheets are to be signed by the class manager and left with the attendant.

All practices this week will be held on the campus rink.

Fists, Falls and Foils

All preparations for the big invitation boxing and wrestling meet, to take place Thursday, are now well underway. Nine bouts out of the seventeen have already been secured and the others are pending. It is more than likely that an Olympic boxer will be seen as well as Stockton the Olympic wrestler who has already accepted his invitation.

The wrestling bouts that have been arranged for are—

126lb. Greenberg vs Black, V. A.C.
135lb. Phelps or Cement vs Southern Verdon A. C.
147lb. MacNaughton or Fisher vs Currier Verdon A. C.
175lb. Demitre vs Stockton, Verdon A. C.

Five boxing bouts have been arranged and it is expected that the others will be settled by to-day. Those secured so far are—

118lb. Brain vs G. Mallet Verdon A.C.
120lb. Stein vs Paul St. Germain V. A. C.
135lb. Ecklin vs J. Bowden W.A.C.
147lb. Taylor vs Ed. Twizell, Kings Club

175lb. McLeod vs Rattelle Massico Club.

Thursday night will see the initiation of a new ring at the Union. This ring, which is now under construction downstairs in the Union, is built of steel with a wooden floor. The platform holds the 21 ft. ring with a space about 3 ft. wide around the outside. It can be put up and taken down in a short time by a few men. The setting up of the ring will be under the direction of Verne Snow.

About thirty men were out for wrestling practice to-day. Fourteen of these were experienced men and Coach Smith put them through some stiff training and taught them some new holds and counters in preparation for the invitation meet Thursday.

THE CAPITOL

"Forbidden Paradise" which is the feature picture at the Capitol this week is certainly a prize-worthy production. Four Negri playing the role of Queen Catherine, Adolphe La Rocque as Alexis, a soldier of Her Royal Majesty's Army at the border Manjou as Court Chancellor and Rod are three leading characters. Pauline Starke playing as the Queen's Lady in waiting is deeply in love with Alexis. The latter discovering that a rebellion is brewing in the army prompted by his loyalty to his Queen, rides hurriedly to her and informs her. She immediately falls in love with Alexis and the progress of her love is indeed interesting and amusing. This production is adapted from the romantic play "The Czarina".

Another item of the Capitol's entertaining programme is the musical selection "Zilka" by the Capitol Orchestra under the direction of G. Agostini. This drew hearty applause from the audience. The Comedies "Felix the Cat" and "Lizzies of the Field" are certain remedies for the blues. Felix has some hair-raising adventures in a sculptor's studio. On the race-track he proves to be a superb jockey.

An interesting news picture completes a well balanced programme. The folks of old Pany fret and scold. And say the girl is tainted. But, although said, she's not as bad. As she is always painted. At her neck I see her dress a V. But that is not a vice. And she would laugh and I would chaff. If I would say 'twere'n't nice. So let us kiss the modern Miss And let her have her way. For we may fuss and fume and fuss. But she will have her say.—Va. Tech.

EAST AND WEST WILL JOIN IN GAY AFFAIR

Tonight at the Venetian Gardens the Westerners and Maritimers congregate for their annual frolic. At least ninety tickets have been sold so that a most enjoyable time is assured.

The Venetian management have promised special favours in addition to the regular cabaret entertainment. The Oklahoma Collegians Orchestra needs no introduction. They dispense music that would delight the most fastidious dancer. In addition to the regular decorations there will be numerous Maritime and Western towns and cities represented by the pennant method.

Sir Arthur and Lady Currie and Dean and Mrs. MacKay have consented to be the patrons and patronesses of the occasion. Last year's dance was a good one—that this one will be bigger, better and more enjoyable there is absolutely no doubt.

A famous philosopher has said that nothing is impossible, but did you ever try—

To write with a postoffice pen?
To look innocent while on the witness stand?

To study a little along with your other activities?

If not—just try!

If you don't laugh at the jokes of the age, laugh at the age of the jokes.

THE IMPERIAL

The bill at the Imperial this week is of a diverting nature.

Perhaps the best act is the "Carnival of Venice". This skit includes artistic color effects, good singing and musical numbers and excellent dancing. In particular stands out while the timbre dancing to several popular airs is also well done.

The Camille Trio in their rough and tumble act seem the next best. The three hardly speak a word, they do no spectacular "stunts" and yet by having their work well timed and by injecting plenty of pep into it they manage to present an interesting act.

Dickson Kenwin offers a tricky act entitled "Solitaire in a Union". He encloses a woman in a suit box and by means of large steel knives he seems to cut her in three and invites the audience to hunt for parts of the body which disappears. After this he proceeds to pull a woman through a two inch hole. Each trick is well done and quite mystifying.

Brown and Whittaker depend on their dialogue and jokes to fill up their act. These however are rather good and with the aid of a song or two their act is completed.

George Lyman a harpist and Barret and Cusheen two comedians give the two remaining acts. The feature picture is one full of action and excitement called "Pools in the Dark". Mat Moore and Patsy Miller are the principals acting however in poor. A Fox News reel gives the finishing touch to the program.

WHAT IS A NAME
What is so rare as a tourist guide, and who can vie with him in creative imagination and brilliant impromptu oratory.

Of course those estimable persons who conduct tours in Montreal know the city like a book-a-book of Greek. Sometimes, however, one happens suddenly to be confronted by a building of which he knows nothing whatever.

Most ordinary mortals in such a predicament would rather at a loss for something to say, but not so the guide. He knows he can rely upon his inventive genius, and immediately there flow from his lips amazing pieces of rhetoric telling in minute detail the history of the place in question.

The tourists, poor unsuspecting creatures are deeply impressed, but forget it all when they reach the next point of interest, so what does it matter? Those who have sojourned any length of time at the Royal Victoria College are no longer in the least surprised to hear that edifice described in stentorian tones from a passing bus "The Victorian order of Nurses" or the "Royal Victoria Hospital" for on catching sight of the Queen's statue the guide naturally announces the first name containing a reference of Queen Victoria which enters his head.

Some bright spirits among the guides, however, scorn this clue to the identity of the building and enter upon original flights of fancy. Occasionally R. V. C. has figured as Villa Maria, in connection with Laval University, and one evening during the French Summer course those of the men and women students who happened to be congregated upon the steps after dinner were somewhat surprised to be informed that it was "A dormitory for medical students (male and female)" It has also been designated as "a free public library donated by Sir Wilfrid Laurier." Undoubtedly, however, the first prize goes to the guide who was inspired to announce it as "The Home for Incubables."

"Whenever I see two good-looking women on the campus at the same time," said John B. campus cynic, "I feel sure that I have been drinking."

"These fifteen men stand ready to serve the people and in so doing are determined to place their interests above party, above everything, and give every corner of Canada a real square deal."

"In closing let me extend to you, electors of Canada the compliments of the season."

Following the announcement the Prime Minister and his cabinet immediately held an important meeting to discuss pressing affairs of state.

It seems pretty strange that a woman must be darn hot to knock a man cold.

J. L. PATON, M.A.

Delivers Second Lecture for Teachers on "Adolescence"

"In the pure joy of physical games we have the antidote to the impure joys of city life," Mr. J. L. Paton, in delivering his second of a series of three lectures on "Adolescence" yesterday afternoon, quoted the above statement as a key to the betterment of social trouble.

The speaker laid special stress on team games and gave some very interesting examples to show mental physical and spiritual phases of a boy's life are developed and bent in the right direction by being a member of a side. One instance he told the audience of, was the commonly recurring one of the player who captures the ball, runs the length of the field and scores a touchdown, only to be recalled by the umpire and the play declared offside. The man probably received an injury or two

In the run and yet he takes the decision without a murmur of protest thereby demonstrating his sportsmanship. The boy's character is furthermore developed by abiding by a set of rules, necessary in all games and striving to help his side win. A man can't win a game by himself. He is just one cog in the machine and only by smooth co-operation with the rest of the machine can he be of any use at all. On the other hand, it is easy for a man to lose a game, by himself, either by being unprepared, fumbling or cowardice. The game teaches him that team play is essential for victory, for it is the team's reputation that is at stake and the slogan is "Do your best for the team and play for the side!" Mr. Paton denounced Golf as a game that "trifles the castles. The player is one class and the caddy in another."

Building up the health centres is another way of helping to solve the social problems. The lecturer remarked that in a certain borough in England with a population of 13,000 people, there was only one acre of land devoted to play grounds and this was cut up into three separate lots in different parts of the borough. The acute shortage of playgrounds in the larger cities, is counterbalanced by the Boy Scout Movement. The scout is taught to obey rules, encouraged to partake in competitive sports, and shown how to simplify life.

At the adolescent stage of a boy's life the color sense is developed. The individual shows a new interest in all things beautiful, in flowers, art and clothes. He has what is termed as "color hunger" that tempts him to break into a workman's shed, take a pot of paint and print on the wall of the shed in big red letters, "Votes for Women." Life seems a little monotonous and breaks such as the above or a street fight tends to put some colour into life and brighten it up a bit. Before the boy reaches the period of adolescence, he shows a tendency towards collecting trifles such as cigarette cards, door knobs etc., but when he becomes an adolescent, he changes and tends to admire large figures and all things big. He tells his father how many millions of stars were seen from the new telescope at Mt. Wilson how many thousands of miles of rails

Canada poses and he just loves to delve into statistics of all sorts. The speaker clearly explained why the adolescent young man is bashful and self-conscious. Up to about his thirteenth year, he is carefree and indifferent but now his voice breaks, he tries to dress neatly take more pains with getting the centre part exactly in the middle and he feels that a strange change is coming over him. In place of the awkward gait, he develops a manly stride, takes more interest in girls and all this baffles him. Getting out of gear of the old environments and habits makes him feel a little nervous and self-conscious.

But the main point of the lecture that Mr. Paton dwelt for some time on, was the encouragement of team play. The lecturer once received a letter from Prof. Takasago of Sapporo. The text of the note is as follows:—

"Tell our boys about your game that do so much for you and our boys lack these qualities,
1. Play the game,
2. Wrest Victory from defeat,
3. Have regard to the part and privilege of the other fellow, Team Spirit!"

The lecture was delivered in a very impressive and clear manner entirely devoid of technical language and appealed to all. The last opportunity of hearing Mr. Paton will be Wednesday afternoon, at 5 o'clock in the Chemistry Building when he will terminate his lectures on "Adolescence". All teachers and others interested in the education of young men and women, should not fail to avail themselves of the opportunity.
